Laughing in times of tears

Giving as a present helps.

From the original Sterntaler chocolate medallions to our social drink Sternderl to the possibility to give a donation as a present: Sterntalerhof gifts are a treat for the person who receives them and a treat for our children and their families, since the proceeds from all of these presents benefit our work.

Faith in times of fear

Practised civil society means:

Sterntalerhof will never reject a family due to financial reasons. This is only possible because we are supported by people through their money, time, know-how or donations in kind – each and every week, each and every family.

"If we manage to give those families who carry such a heavy load on their shoulders a little relief, then that's the most wonderful thing for me."

- therapy coordinator Lisa Wiesinger

Hope.

In times of despair.

Sterntalerhof

Children's Hospice for families whose future is written in the stars.

Joy in times of grief

Sterntalerhof: children's hospice and harbourage for families

Sterntalerhof gives children a today whose tomorrow is written in the stars. In a protected and natural atmosphere, we support families with severely, chronically and terminally ill children on their way back to a normal everyday life - gently and carefully, because on this way back to a normal life, these families very often have to say goodbye to a loved one.

Day in and day out, a professional interdisciplinary team from different fields including therapy, pedagogy, psychology, as well as social and counselling work and psychotherapy works here at Sterntalerhof – supported by specially trained therapeutic horses who know exactly how to touch the hearts of the children.

A feeling of comfort, hope and zest for life – for children and their families who do not know how long they're going to have a tomorrow together.

Sterntalerhof as Austria's first children's hospice is surrounded by untouched nature. It all began in 1998 as a small farm, and has since then developed from a private initiative into a professional network which operates in cooperations beyond borders.

Comfort in times of loneliness

Every family who gets into a psychosocial exceptional situation due to the life-threatening or life-limiting disease of a child will be cushioned, supported and accompanied on their way back into a normal everyday life.

In-patient care

The heart of our work beats at Sterntalerhof itself: This includes our holistic and family-focused guidance in life, death and grief in our families' stays of up to three weeks at Sterntalerhof.

Out-patient guidance

Many children come to Sterntalerhof on a weekly basis for their out-patient therapy. The "orphaned families" project additionally guides families in the region who have lost a child or a parent.

Mobile care

Very important: We continue to support our families when they are back home – until they are back on their feet again. This part of our work relies on a continuously growing network of partners.

Integrative guidance through grief

Grief needs one thing most of all: plenty of time. Our thoroughly trained team takes care of affected children from the beginning when they're first diagnosed until the very end - and of the grieving families well beyond the death of their children.

Sterntalerhof has been financing its work exclusively through donations, partners and charities from its first day of existence.

At Sterntalerhof it is not only the child who is taken care of – it is always the entire family!

Every year we support and take care of more than 100 children and their families. And every year this number increases...

"You at Sterntalerhof, you should never move a single millimetre away from your concept, because this is exactly what the families need: this non-rigid, calm and familial environment."

- a mother

The term "hospice" means harbourage, and this is exactly what Sterntalerhof is for our families.
